Resolution 1

Working towards the elimination of nuclear weapons

The Council of Delegates,

deeply concerned about the destructive power of nuclear weapons, the unspeakable human suffering they cause, the difficulty of controlling their effects in space and time, the threat they pose to the environment and to future generations and the risks of escalation they create, concerned also by the continued retention of tens of thousands of nuclear warheads, the proliferation of such weapons and the constant risk that they could again be used, disturbed by the serious implications of any use of nuclear weapons for humanitarian assistance activities and food production over wide areas of the world, believing that the existence of nuclear weapons raises profound questions about the extent of suffering that humans are willing to inflict, or to permit, in warfare, welcoming the renewed diplomatic efforts on nuclear disarmament, in particular the commitments made by States at the 2009 United Nations Security Council Summit on Nuclear Non-Proliferation and Nuclear Disarmament, the 2010 Review Conference of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and the Treaty Between the United States of America and the Russian Federation on Measures for the Further Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms, welcoming also the commitments made by States at the highest levels in the above fora to create the conditions for a world free of nuclear weapons through concrete actions in the fields of nuclear non-proliferation and nuclear disarmament, recalling the 1996 advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice, which confirmed that the principles and rules of international humanitarian law apply to nuclear weapons and concluded that the threat or use of such weapons would generally be contrary to the principles and rules of international humanitarian law, drawing upon the testimony of atomic bomb survivors, the experience of the Japanese Red Cross Society and the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in assisting the victims of the atomic bomb blasts in Hiroshima and Nagasaki and the knowledge gained through the ongoing treatment of survivors by the Japanese Red Cross Atomic Bomb Survivors Hospitals, bearing in mind the resolutions on weapons of mass destruction in general and the abolition of nuclear weapons in particular, adopted by the International Conferences of the Red Cross and Red Crescent in 1948, 1952, 1957, 1965, 1969, 1977 and 1981 and by the Council of Delegates in 2009, and the statements on nuclear weapons made by the President of the ICRC to the Geneva diplomatic corps in April 2010 and by the President of the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies to Nobel laureates in Hiroshima in November 2010, convinced that the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement) has an historic and important role to play in efforts to create the conditions for a world without nuclear weapons,

1. emphasizes the incalculable human suffering that can be expected to result from any use of nuclear weapons, the lack of any adequate humanitarian response capacity and the absolute imperative to prevent such use;
2. finds it difficult to envisage how any use of nuclear weapons could be compatible with the rules of international humanitarian law, in particular the rules of distinction, precaution and proportionality;
3. appeals to all States:
 - to ensure that nuclear weapons are never again used, regardless of their views on the legality of such weapons;
 - to pursue in good faith and conclude with urgency and determination negotiations to prohibit the use of and completely eliminate nuclear weapons through a legally binding international agreement, based on existing commitments and international obligations;

4. calls on all components of the Movement, utilizing the framework of humanitarian diplomacy:

- to engage, to the extent possible, in activities to raise awareness among the public, scientists, health professionals and decision-makers of the catastrophic humanitarian consequences of any use of nuclear weapons, the international humanitarian law issues that arise from such use and the need for concrete actions leading to the prohibition of use and elimination of such weapons;
- to engage, to the extent possible, in continuous dialogue with governments and other relevant actors on the humanitarian and international humanitarian law issues associated with nuclear weapons and to disseminate the Movement position outlined in this resolution.

Resolution 2

Movement components' relations with external humanitarian actors

The Council of Delegates,

recalling the 2009 Council of Delegates workshop on "Relations with Actors Outside of the Movement,"

1. welcomes the background report submitted to the 2011 Council of Delegates on 'Movement components' relations with external humanitarian actors';
 2. adopts the following recommendations of the report:
 - a) all Movement components should promote to external humanitarian actors how they work in accordance with the Fundamental Principles;
 - b) the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies and the International Committee of the Red Cross, in consultation with National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, should continue to analyse the need for and, where relevant, further develop guidance, with particular attention to:
 - i. coordination with UN agencies and coordinating bodies, including for resource mobilization;
 - ii. relationships with various country coordination mechanisms and bodies (including country teams and clusters), including in changing contexts, e.g. when conflict erupts where a natural disaster emergency operation is underway (or vice versa);
 - c) all Movement components should continue to strengthen Movement coordination mechanisms at country and regional level, to use this as a means to improve relations with external humanitarian actors and capture and share experiences of this in order to serve the most vulnerable better.
- iii. the evolving role played by civil protection and military and civil defence assets in disaster and crisis situations;
 - iv. the use of the emblem by all components of the Movement in operations led by other organizations;
 - v. ways to engage with the private sector as an operational partner;
 - vi. strengthening the capacities of all Movement components to develop and manage relationships with external humanitarian actors, in line with the Fundamental Principles, Movement Statutes, policies and guidelines;
 - vii. maintaining an overview of existing policies, strategies and guidance relating to relations with external humanitarian actors and making these available in a user-friendly manner;

Resolution 3

Strategy for the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement Strategy)

1. Background

The Strategy for the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement) was first adopted at the Council of Delegates in 2001. It was updated by the 2005 Council of Delegates, as some actions were considered completed and to review the relevance of the remaining actions. The number of actions was reduced from 17 to 10 while the strategic objectives remained unchanged:

- strengthening the components of the Movement;
- improving the Movement's effectiveness and efficiency through increased cooperation and coherence;
- improving the Movement's image and the components' visibility and relations with governments and external partners.

The 2009 Council of Delegates in Nairobi found it reasonable to assume that the Strategy and most of its actions would be completed by 2011, after 10 years of work. It therefore requested the Standing Commission, with the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (International Federation) and the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), to present to this Council an evaluation of the achievement of the strategic objectives and the expected results in the ten actions of the Strategy.

The main findings and recommendations of the evaluation are presented in the report on the Strategy for the Movement. The full evaluation report is available to Council members upon request.

The Nairobi resolution further invited the Standing Commission to continue its work on reducing the complexities of the Movement fora, and to present its proposals for change, as relevant, to this Council.

Encouraging improvements in consulting National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (National Societies) in the preparation of various Movement fora have been recorded, as called for by National Society leaders in comprehensive reviews on the issue at hand. However, key issues concerning questions of frequency and duration along with options for aligning or even merging some of the fora require more discussion on options to move forward.

2. Decision

As the trustee of the International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent, and as the permanent Movement body where all components are represented and which provides strategic guidance in matters which concern the Movement as a whole, the 2011 Council of Delegates calls on the incoming Standing Commission:

- 2.1. to finalize the work on Movement fora and to submit change proposals, as relevant, for decision by the 2013 Council of Delegates, and to this end create an ad hoc working group representing National Societies with a wide range of expertise, including a youth representative;
- 2.2. to base this work on the outcomes of the comprehensive reviews already undertaken by the outgoing Standing Commission on the Movement with the aim of reaching agreement on concrete changes in the interest of greater efficiency and effectiveness and reduced costs and environmental impact of meetings involving all Movement components;
- 2.3. to update, in close cooperation with all components of the Movement, the open-ended actions of the present Strategy, in order to implement them and consequently report to the 2013 Council. This effort should focus on coordinated and efficient Movement-level cooperation, to strengthen the Movement's image and performance in agreed key areas, in order to deliver on our mission for the most vulnerable. It should also take into account trends in the internal and external working environments;
- 2.4. to review the findings of the International Federation and the ICRC's monitoring of the implementation of resolutions, including information from their regional structures, with a view to improving follow-up and reporting and planning for future Movement-level meetings.

3. Follow-up

- The Standing Commission shall regularly report on progress through its newsletter
- The Commission's www.standcom.ch website shall be used as one channel of regular feedback to/from National Societies on the work in progress

Resolution 4

Revision of National Society statutes and legal base

The Council of Delegates,

reaffirming the objective of Action 3 of the Strategy for the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement), which called upon all National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (National Societies) to examine their statutes and related legal texts and where necessary, to adopt new constitutional texts, in accordance with the “Guidance for National Societies Statutes” (Guidance document) and relevant resolutions of the International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent (International Conference), recalling Resolution 3 of the 2009 Council of Delegates urging National Societies to continue to work closely with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (International Federation), and to consult with the Joint ICRC/ International Federation Commission for National Society Statutes (Joint Statutes Commission) in order to ensure that all National Societies have examined and updated their statutes and related texts by the end of 2010, welcoming the report of Joint Statutes Commission, which summarizes the progress achieved, the experience gained and the work still to be undertaken, taking note with appreciation that close to 90 per cent of all National Societies have initiated a process of review of their statutes and related legal texts since the adoption of the 2001 Strategy for the Movement, while acknowledging however that significant work is still required by many National Societies in order to bring their constitutional and statutory base instruments in line with the minimum requirements of the Guidance document, expressing its deep appreciation to those National Societies which have successfully completed a revision of their Statutes and related legal texts in accordance with the Guidance document, noting that many National Societies continue to face challenges in their efforts to work in accordance with the Fundamental Principles in their respective operational contexts, and reiterating the crucial importance of high-quality statutes, and the imperative of a strong legislative base for National Societies in domestic law in order to ensure their ability and capacity to deliver services to people in need effectively, recognizing that the regular and periodical review of a National Society’s legal base instruments (e.g. every 10 years) is important in assisting National Societies to adapt to new challenges and circumstances, recognizing the many challenges which National Societies may face in order to comply fully with the minimum requirements and recommendations defined in the Guidance document due to their respective contexts of operation, reaffirming in this regard the primary responsibility of National Societies at the level of their leadership and management to ensure that adequate constitutional and statutory instruments are in place and duly implemented,

1. congratulates National Societies for their continuing and considerable efforts invested in the last decade in the revision of their statutes and related legal texts and in the strengthening of their legal base in domestic law;
2. expresses its appreciation to National Societies who have established a constructive dialogue with the ICRC and the International Federation, as well as with the Joint Statutes Commission, which has allowed the Movement to progress toward fulfilling the objective of strengthening National Societies’ legal base;
3. recommends that National Societies which have not yet initiated or successfully completed a statutes revision process undertake the necessary steps in order to update their statutory or constitutional base instruments in accordance with the Guidance document and relevant Council of Delegates and International Conference resolutions;
4. invites National Societies undertaking a revision of their statutes and related legal texts to pay special attention to the following questions identified by the Joint Statutes Commission as the issues most often at variance with the Guidance document, including the definition of

- the National Society's relationship with its public authorities, in particular its status and role as an auxiliary in the humanitarian field, in line with the Fundamental Principle of independence;
- the National Society's governing bodies (composition, duties, procedures and rotation);
- the roles and responsibilities of governance and management;
- the National Society's membership;
- the branch structure (e.g. how branches are created, what bodies govern them and the relationship between branches and headquarters);

5. encourages National Societies to initiate or pursue a dialogue, as required, with their national authorities in order to strengthen their legal base in domestic law, through high-quality Red Cross/Red Crescent laws, so as to formalize their auxiliary role in the humanitarian field and to recognize the commitment of national authorities to respect the ability of National Societies to work and operate in accordance with the Fundamental Principles;
6. calls upon National Societies, in particular at the level of their respective leadership, to continue working closely with ICRC and International Federation delegations in the revision of their statutes and related legal texts and in the strengthening of their legal base in domestic law, to take the recommendations of the Joint Statutes Commission into account, as well as to keep the Joint Statutes Commission duly informed of any progress or new developments;

7. calls upon the ICRC, the International Federation and the Joint Statutes Commission to pursue actively their support to National Societies and to seek ways of increasing their capacity and the effectiveness of their working methods. In their work to support National Societies, they should pay particular attention to National Society laws and regulations, to develop new advisory notes for National Societies as needed, and to ensure that the new institution-building mechanisms and tools established within the Movement duly include and reflect the objective of strengthening the legal and statutory base instruments of National Societies;
8. invites the ICRC and the International Federation to initiate a consultation with National Societies on the most effective ways to continue the process of strengthening National Society legal base instruments in the future, and thus to explore and implement new and innovative ways and models to support National Societies, and to draw further on existing resources, partnerships and legal expertise within the Movement, including the use of new learning platforms and relevant National Society capacities and networks;
9. invites the ICRC and the International Federation to draw on the work of the Joint Statutes Commission in order to report on the achievement of the ongoing objective of strengthening the legal and statutory base instruments of National Societies to the 2013 and subsequent Councils of Delegates.

Resolution 7

National Societies preparing for and responding to armed conflict and other situations of violence¹

I. Background

Situations of violence can develop at any time and anywhere, as recent events demonstrate. They often give rise to issues of humanitarian concern that require an immediate response by National Red Cross or Red Crescent Societies (National Societies). In addition, armed conflicts, chronic and sometimes protracted over several years or decades, require similar forms of humanitarian response. Demonstrations which lead to violence pose another kind of challenge to the humanitarian sector – to adapt its working procedures, designed primarily for rural settings, to urban environments as well.

To enhance access to people and communities affected by armed conflict and other situations of violence,² and to respond effectively to their needs, it is essential that all the components of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement) work together in preparedness, response and recovery, to maximize their respective capacities and competencies.

Converging and Complementary Movement Mandates and Capacities

National Societies have a mandate, as described in the Statutes of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Statutes) to “organize, in liaison with the public authorities, emergency relief operations and other services to assist the victims of armed conflicts as provided in the Geneva Conventions, and the victims of natural disasters and other emergencies for whom help is needed.”³ A number of resolutions adopted at Councils of Delegates and International Conferences of the Red Cross and Red Crescent reinforce the mandate of National Societies to act as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field⁴ and to provide humanitarian assistance and protection to those in need, including those affected by armed conflict and other situations of violence within their own countries.⁵

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) has a statutory mandate “to endeavour at all times – as a neutral institution whose humanitarian work is carried out particularly in time of international and other armed conflicts or internal strife⁶ – to ensure the protection of and assistance to military and civilian victims of such events and of their direct results.”⁷ In such situations, the ICRC works in close partnership with the National Society of the affected country as well as with participating National Societies and the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (International Federation) to prepare and carry out emergency humanitarian operations.

The International Federation’s statutory mandate includes the following: “to inspire, encourage, facilitate and promote at all times all forms of humanitarian activities by the National Societies, with 1 Other situations of violence as a component of the National Societies’ overall mandate, as set out in the Statutes of the Movement.

2 An ICRC description of ‘Other situations of violence’ can be found in the Background Report supporting this resolution.

3 Article 3, clause 2 of the Statutes of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

4 Two such recent resolutions are: Resolution 2 of the 30th International Conference and Resolution 3 of the 2007 Council of Delegates on the “Specific nature of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement in action and partnerships and the role of National Societies as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field.”

5 For example, the General Principles contained in Resolution XIV of the 10th International Conference in 1921, on Civil War, state: “The Red Cross (...) affirms its right and duty of affording relief in case of civil war and social and revolutionary disturbances (...) In every country in which civil war breaks out, it is the National Red Cross Society which, in the first place is responsible for dealing, in the most complete manner, with the relief needs of the victims ...”

6 As defined in Part II, Article 5, clause 2 (b) of the Seville Agreement, internal strife “does not necessarily imply armed action but serious acts of violence over a prolonged period or a latent situation of violence, whether of political, religious, racial, social, economic or other origin, accompanied by one or more features such as: mass arrests, forced disappearances, detention for security reasons, suspension of judicial guarantees, declaration of state of emergency, declaration of martial law.”

7 Article 5, clause 2 (d) of the Statutes of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

a view to preventing and alleviating human suffering and thereby contributing to the maintenance and the promotion of peace in the world”; “to act as the permanent body of liaison, coordination, and study between the National Societies and to give them any assistance they might request”; and “to bring help to victims of armed conflicts in accordance with the agreements concluded with the International Committee.”⁸

The mandates and capacities, as well as the unique positioning of each of the Movement’s components, must be taken fully into consideration when preparing for and responding to armed conflict and other situations of violence, in order to maximize the impact of the protection and assistance provided to the populations most in need. Activities should be allocated bearing these factors in mind as well as considering the level of acceptance provided to the various Movement components and whether the ICRC, the National Society or the two together would be better placed to respond. Improved Movement coordination and further discussion among the components of the Movement on the specific questions raised by ‘other situations of violence’ which results in an increased convergence of preparedness, response and recovery actions is required, in accordance with Movement agreements and mechanisms, and on the basis of context-specific circumstances and needs, to enhance access and response to the humanitarian needs of people and communities affected by armed conflict and other situations of violence.

The ICRC’s Response to a Request by National Societies

To adapt to the ever-changing environment, many National Societies have taken important measures in recent years to strengthen their response during armed conflict and other situations of violence.

Based upon the best practices of National Societies, the ICRC developed the Safer Access Framework.⁹ This Framework outlines the numerous interconnected actions that a National Society needs to carry out in order to increase its acceptance by individuals, communities, weapon-bearers and authorities and thereby gain safer access to people and communities during armed conflict and other situations of violence.

During a plenary session at the 2009 Council of Delegates,¹⁰ National Societies requested the ICRC to develop operational guidance for National Societies working in armed conflict and other situations of violence. It was determined through a comprehensive consultation process with National Societies that the Safer Access Framework and the lessons learned from current National Society experience would be used as the foundation to develop a practical guide to strengthen the capacity of all National Societies to prepare for and respond to armed conflict and other situations of violence.

The guide will also enhance the practical application of the Seville Agreement and its Supplementary Measures, in particular by providing support for host National Societies to fulfil their mandates and play their roles in a Movement-coordinated response to armed conflict or to other situations of violence.

II. Challenges

Today, armed conflict and other situations of violence pose new, evolving challenges for the Movement’s response. Some of the most significant are set out below.

Recurrent attacks against Movement personnel, including National Society staff and volunteers, their facilities and equipment, and the harm caused to beneficiaries are causing alarm.

Some National Societies are prevented, by all those who can influence access to beneficiaries, from providing humanitarian services to those in need on all sides of an armed conflict or other situation of violence, or they are challenged or even harassed when they attempt to do so. In this respect, there is, in some countries, a need to strengthen the 8 Article 6, clauses 3 and 4 (i) of the Statutes of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

9 The Safer Access Framework is based on the concept of applying the Fundamental Principles and other Movement policies during response operations, which helps to position a National Society to secure greater acceptance and safe access to beneficiaries. Its elements include context/risk analysis, National Society legal and policy base to respond in armed conflict and other situations of violence, securing the organization’s acceptance, acceptance of the National Societies’ staff, volunteers and members, identification of the National Societies’ people, facilities and vehicles, internal and external communications and security management (guidelines and protective measures).

10 2009 Council of Delegates, Workshop 5 (Improving our Combined Output by Fostering Collective Responsibility and Partnerships) and the plenary linked to the discussion of the Seville Agreement and its Supplementary Measures.

National Society's statutory and legal instruments to better reflect its role in armed conflicts and other situations of violence. This should take into account the Fundamental Principle of independence, which balances the autonomy of National Societies with their status and role as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field.

There are many recent examples of well-coordinated Movement responses during armed conflict and other situations of violence. However, our response to the humanitarian needs of the people and communities affected could be improved. It is important to deepen our shared Movement knowledge and understanding of emerging trends in such situations and their consequences for humanitarian action, in order to improve the quality of our response and develop a uniform Movement approach. Overall, the Movement's components need to improve their level of readiness to respond to the needs of affected people rapidly and effectively in a coordinated and complementary manner, taking into account the changing environments in which they work. The ICRC and National Societies should pay particular attention to developing contingency plans that are coordinated and complement one another, to guide their responses during armed conflict and other situations of violence.

Adherence to the Fundamental Principles, and fostering respect in others for our adherence to the principles, are permanent challenges for all Movement components and are vitally important in increasing the degree of acceptance that is required to secure safer access to the people and communities affected by armed conflict and other situations of violence. The Statutes of the Movement and relevant Councils of Delegates resolutions¹¹ emphasize this point.

III. Decisions

Recognizing the mandate of National Societies as per the Statutes of the Movement to operate and respond to armed conflict, natural disasters and other emergencies including internal strife and other situations of violence and in order to strengthen the Movement's response to armed conflict and other situations of violence, the 2011 Council of Delegates:

1. encourages National Societies to intensify their commitment and efforts to adopt appropriate security/risk management systems, and to take other concrete measures to increase their safer access in armed conflict and other situations of violence. This includes the need to enhance the operational application of the Fundamental Principles and other relevant Movement policies as well as to obtain insurance coverage¹² for staff and volunteers working in crises, to adequately compensate them for possible injury, including psychological trauma/stress, or death in the line of duty;
2. urges National Societies, where necessary, to engage in a dialogue with all concerned governments on the need for access to all populations affected by armed conflict and other situations of violence and to exert influence, where possible, on all those who can influence access to beneficiaries to respect the National Societies' role to provide neutral, impartial and independent humanitarian services, (as defined by the Fundamental Principles), with the support and involvement of the ICRC as appropriate;
3. urges National Societies, the ICRC and the International Federation to continue to explore and analyse emerging trends and challenges to humanitarian action during armed conflict and other situations of violence, with a view to making such shared analyses the basis of coordinated contingency planning for the provision of rapid, effective and coherent response to the humanitarian needs of people and communities affected, while also strengthening their resilience;
4. encourages National Societies to further define their mandates, roles and responsibilities in armed conflict and other situations of violence within their statutory and legal base instruments, as appropriate, and to promote their role broadly,

¹¹ For instance: 2009 Council of Delegates, Resolution 8, Respecting and protecting health care in armed conflict and other situations of violence; 30th International Conference, 2007, Resolution 1, Annex Declaration: Together for humanity; 2005 Council of Delegates, Resolution 7, Relations between the components of the Movement and military bodies; 2003 Council of Delegates, Resolution 9, Promote respect for diversity and fight discrimination and intolerance – clause 4 (f) of the annex to the Resolution.

¹² Ideally, insurance coverage should be provided to all volunteers, particularly those involved in emergency response operations, by the National Society through a national insurance company that provides insurance appropriate to the context and adapted to local realities. To deal with situations where this is not available, the Secretariat of the International Federation has put in place global accident insurance available through the headquarters of all National Societies.

both within their National Society, and with external actors and communities;

5. invites the ICRC and the International Federation to work closely with National Societies to define how the mandates, roles and responsibilities of National Societies in armed conflict and other situations of violence may best be reflected in National Societies' statutory and legal base instruments and to advise National Societies engaged in revising their statutes accordingly;
6. recommends that National Societies, as part of their permanent dialogue with their respective governments, work towards strengthening domestic legislation, policies, agreements and plans in order to establish the framework required to enable them to provide effective assistance and protection to populations affected by armed conflict and other situations of violence;
7. invites the components of the Movement to continue to develop a practical guide, to further clarify the term 'other situations of violence' and to strengthen the capacity of all National Societies to prepare for and respond to armed conflict and other situations of violence – based on the Fundamental Principles, the Statutes of the Movement, relevant Movement policies and current National Society experience, as a valuable contribution towards building a Movement approach in this area;
8. encourages the International Federation to work closely with the ICRC and National Societies to develop effective mechanisms that ensure the aforementioned guide and the ICRC's programmes and capacity strengthening expertise that support National Societies to prepare for and respond to armed conflict and other situations of violence, are taken into account in the approach toward the development of strong National Societies, with a particular emphasis on incorporating relevant elements into emergency preparedness, response, recovery and organizational development initiatives.

IV. The Background Report and Annex

The Background Report and Annex are for information purposes only and are not a part of decisions.

V. Follow-up

All the components of the Movement are requested to consider including the decisions listed above in their strategies, plans and objectives, where relevant.

Progress in implementing the decisions listed above will be included in the report to the Council of Delegates on the Implementation of the Seville Agreement and its Supplementary Measures in 2013 and 2015.

The ICRC, with the continued involvement of National Societies and the Secretariat of the International Federation, will develop the practical guide, which will address many of the challenges identified in this resolution, and more. It will be completed by the end of 2012 and will be introduced to Movement partners in 2013.

Resolution 1

Strengthening legal protection for victims of armed conflicts

deeply concerned that armed conflicts continue to cause enormous suffering, including violations of international humanitarian law, such as murder, forced disappearance, the taking of hostages, torture, cruel or inhumane treatment, rape and other forms of sexual violence, and that such suffering affects entire populations, including among the most vulnerable, in various parts of the world, stressing that greater compliance with international humanitarian law is an indispensable prerequisite for improving the situation of victims of armed conflict and reaffirming the obligation of all States and all parties to armed conflict to respect and ensure respect for international humanitarian law in all circumstances, recalling the universal ratification of the 1949 Geneva Conventions, expressing the hope that other international humanitarian law treaties will also achieve universal acceptance, and inviting all States to consider ratifying or acceding to international humanitarian law treaties to which they are not yet party, recalling Resolution 3 on the “Reaffirmation and implementation of international humanitarian law,” adopted by the 30th International Conference, reiterating that international humanitarian law remains as relevant today as ever before in international and non-international armed conflicts and continues to provide protection for all victims of armed conflict, recognizing the importance of having due regard to humanitarian considerations and military necessity arising from armed conflict, with the objective of ensuring that international humanitarian law remains essential in providing legal protection to all victims of armed conflict and that States and other parties to armed conflicts fully implement their obligations in this regard, mindful of the need to strengthen international humanitarian law, in particular through its reaffirmation in situations when it is not properly implemented and its clarification or development when it does not sufficiently meet the needs of the victims of armed conflict, emphasizing the primary role of States in the development of international humanitarian law, recalling that one of the important roles of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), in accordance with the Statutes of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement), is in particular “to work for the understanding and dissemination of knowledge of international humanitarian law applicable in armed conflicts and to prepare any development thereof,” and further recalling the respective roles of the ICRC and National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (National Societies) in the promotion, dissemination, implementation and development of international humanitarian law, recalling that the functions of the International Conference, in accordance with the Statutes of the Movement, include “to contribute to the respect for and development of international humanitarian law and other international conventions of particular interest to the Movement,” taking note of the 2003 ICRC summary report on regional expert seminars related to improving compliance with international humanitarian law presented to the 28th International Conference, as well as the 2009 report on a conference of experts entitled “60 Years of the Geneva Conventions and the Decades Ahead” prepared by the Swiss Government and the ICRC,

1. thanks the ICRC for the report outlining the main conclusions of its study on strengthening legal protection for victims of armed conflicts and for the consultations carried out with States in this regard;
2. acknowledges that the report identifies serious humanitarian concerns and challenges that need

- to be addressed, in particular those related to the protection of persons deprived of their liberty in relation to armed conflict and the need to ensure greater compliance with international humanitarian law, and that, on the basis of the consultations, the report calls for concrete and coordinated action to address these concerns;
3. recognizes the importance of analysing the humanitarian concerns and military considerations related to the deprivation of liberty in relation to armed conflict with the aim, inter alia, of ensuring humane treatment, adequate conditions of detention, taking into account age, gender, disabilities and other factors that can increase vulnerability, and the requisite procedural and legal safeguards for persons detained, interned or transferred in relation to armed conflict;
 4. recognizes, taking into account questions raised by States during the preparation of and in the debates at the 31st International Conference, that further research, consultation and discussion are needed to assess the most appropriate way to ensure that international humanitarian law remains practical and relevant in providing legal protection to all persons deprived of their liberty in relation to armed conflict;
 5. recognizes, taking into account questions raised by States during the preparation of and in the debates at the 31st International Conference, the importance of exploring ways of enhancing and ensuring the effectiveness of mechanisms of compliance with international humanitarian law, with a view to strengthening legal protection for all victims of armed conflict;
 6. invites the ICRC to pursue further research, consultation and discussion in cooperation with States and, if appropriate, other relevant actors, including international and regional organizations, to identify and propose a range of options and its recommendations to: i) ensure that international humanitarian law remains practical and relevant in providing legal protection to all persons deprived of their liberty in relation to armed conflict; and ii) enhance and ensure the effectiveness of mechanisms of compliance with international humanitarian law; and encourages all members of the International Conference, including National Societies, to participate in this work while recognizing the primary role of States in the development of international humanitarian law;
 7. notes that such work should be carried out taking into account existing relevant international legal regimes and other international processes on similar issues; in this sense expresses its appreciation to the government of Switzerland for its commitment to explore and identify concrete ways and means to strengthen the application of international humanitarian law and reinforce dialogue on international humanitarian law issues among States and other interested actors, in cooperation with the ICRC;
 8. invites the ICRC to provide information on the progress of its work at regular intervals to all members of the International Conference and to submit a report on this work, with a range of options, to the 32nd International Conference for its consideration and appropriate action.

Resolution 2

4-year action plan for the implementation of international humanitarian law

The 31st International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent (International Conference),

1. adopts the Action Plan in Annex 1;
2. urges all members of the International Conference to implement the actions set out in the Action Plan, in accordance with their respective powers, mandates, capacities and applicable obligations under international humanitarian law, with a view to reaching the objectives defined in the Action Plan;
3. reminds States of the auxiliary role of National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies to the public authorities in the humanitarian field, in particular where they work in the framework of national international humanitarian law committees or similar bodies, and encourages States to cooperate with them, as appropriate, in implementing the actions set out in the Action Plan;
4. takes note of existing initiatives by other humanitarian actors and organizations in certain areas covered by this Action Plan and stresses the need to ensure synergies between such initiatives and this Action Plan in cooperation with States;
5. invites all members of the International Conference to submit pledges, either individually or jointly, in relation to the recommendations contained in the Action Plan;
6. invites international and regional organizations to implement the actions contained in the Action Plan which relate to their activities;
7. requests all members of the International Conference to make every possible effort to ensure that all actors concerned implement, as appropriate, the Action Plan,
8. invites all members of the International Conference to inform the International Committee of the Red Cross on progress made on implementation of the Action Plan, with a view to the presentation of a report on implementation to the 32nd International Conference in 2015;
9. requests the members of the International Conference to report to the 32nd International Conference in 2015 on the follow-up to their pledges.

Annex 1: Action plan for implementing international humanitarian law

Objective 1: Enhanced access by civilian populations to humanitarian assistance in armed conflicts

States reaffirm the right of civilian populations in need to benefit from impartial humanitarian relief in accordance with international humanitarian law. States will ensure, to the fullest extent of the means available to them, that the civilian population is adequately provided with supplies in accordance with relevant provisions of international humanitarian law.

States will also, in accordance with international humanitarian law, allow and facilitate safe, rapid and unimpeded passage of impartial humanitarian relief for civilian populations in need and will respect and protect humanitarian personnel and objects.

The components of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement) must be able to deliver humanitarian assistance at all times in conformity with the Fundamental Principles of humanity, impartiality, neutrality and independence. States will respect the adherence by all components of the Movement to these Fundamental Principles.

- a) Remove administrative barriers to the rapid delivery of humanitarian assistance for victims of armed conflicts

States consider, including through enacting domestic legislation or concluding agreements with components of the Movement:

- facilitating the rapid issuance of valid documents allowing the mission of members of components of the Movement access across the international borders of the State and within the State concerned;
- expediting procedures for monitoring the entry and distribution of humanitarian goods of components of the Movement;
- exempting personnel and goods of components of the Movement from taxes, duties and fees where necessary.

States endeavour to make available the necessary telecommunication facilities to components of the Movement, taking into account the need of the Movement for two-way wireless telecommunication means when normal communication facilities are interrupted or not available, in accordance with Resolution 10 of the 2000 World Radiocommunication Conference. They assign to the components of the Movement the minimum number of necessary working frequencies in accordance with the applicable Radio Regulations and take all practicable steps to protect such communications from harmful interference. States which have not already done so consider acceding to the Tampere Convention on the Provision of Telecommunication Resources for Disaster Mitigation and Relief Operations.

- b) Establishing and maintaining an environment conducive to dialogue

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the host National Red Cross or Red Crescent Society (National Society) concerned will establish and maintain a constructive dialogue with all parties to armed conflicts in order to obtain access to victims and the necessary security guarantees for its staff. States respect the need for such dialogue and reaffirm the unique position and contribution of the ICRC and National Societies in this regard.

Components of the Movement will continue to ensure that in the planning, delivery and monitoring of humanitarian assistance the specific needs of victims of conflicts as well as local capacities are taken into account.

States and components of the Movement continue their dialogue to ensure a better complementarity between and effective international coordination with different humanitarian actors, taking into account their respective roles and mandates.

- c) Implementation and enforcement

States ensure that instruction is provided to members of their armed forces to respect the physical integrity and unimpeded passage of humanitarian personnel and objects in accordance with international humanitarian law.

States adopt adequate measures at a domestic level, including national legislation, to comply with their international obligations concerning arbitrary obstruction of humanitarian assistance and to prevent and sanction attacks on humanitarian personnel and objects.

States ensure that perpetrators of attacks against humanitarian personnel, including personnel using the distinctive emblems in accordance with the Geneva Conventions and their Additional Protocols, are held accountable, by encouraging disciplinary measures and criminal prosecutions.

Objective 2: To enhance the specific protection afforded to certain categories of persons, in particular children, women and persons with disabilities

Specific protection is due to certain categories of persons in recognition of factors such as age, gender or disabilities, which make such persons more vulnerable in times of armed conflicts. To safeguard adequate protection for all victims of armed conflicts, including in situations of occupation, without discrimination, such factors must be taken into account.

Objective 2.1: To enhance the protection of children in armed conflict

States, National Societies and the ICRC will raise awareness of the protection of children in armed conflict by international law, in particular international humanitarian law.

- a) Prevention of recruitment of children in armed forces or armed groups

States take effective measures to register children immediately after birth and endeavour to establish supplementary identification and registration systems for all children, including for particularly vulnerable children like internally displaced children and refugee children, to protect them from unlawful recruitment.

States consider establishing domestic inspection regimes independent from the armed forces, such as ombudspersons or annual external inspections commissioned by civilian governmental authorities, to monitor the compliance of armed forces with the prohibition of child recruitment.

States, in cooperation with National Societies and the ICRC, design and set up educational and vocational training programmes where possible, in combination with employment opportunities, to offer boys and girls viable alternatives to recruitment.

- b) Ratification, national implementation and enforcement of international law relevant to the prevention and repression of participation in hostilities by children and the recruitment of children into armed forces or armed groups

States which have not already done so consider ratifying or acceding to the 2000 Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on involvement of children in armed conflict.

States which have not already done so also consider adhering to the 2007 Paris Principles and Commitments to protect children from unlawful recruitment or use by armed forces or armed groups.

States which have not already done so consider enacting national legislation or other measures to regulate the minimum age of recruitment into armed forces and armed groups and to prevent the involvement of children in armed conflict in accordance with the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on involvement of children in armed conflict.

States ensure that those who unlawfully recruit children are held accountable for their acts through appropriate measures, inter alia, by referral to courts especially when it constitutes a war crime, in accordance with applicable international law.

- c) Protection of education in armed conflict

States reaffirm that attacks against civilians, including children and teachers, are prohibited, unless and for such time as they are directly participating in hostilities. States also reaffirm that attacks against civilian buildings dedicated to education are prohibited unless they make an effective contribution to military action by their nature, location, purpose or use and their total or partial destruction, capture or neutralization, in the circumstances ruling at the time, offers a definite military advantage. In case of doubt whether civilians or civilian objects lose protection from attack, States treat them as civilians and civilian objects.

States take all feasible precautions to protect children and teachers, as well as civilian buildings dedicated to education, from the effects of attacks in accordance with international humanitarian law.

States take all feasible measures to prevent civilian buildings dedicated to education from being used for purposes that could cause them to lose their protection under international humanitarian law.

d) Rehabilitation of children affected by armed conflicts

States ensure that specific provisions for the release of children associated with armed forces and armed groups, for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of such children, for the care of internally displaced children, and for medical care, psychosocial support and economic inclusion of all children affected by armed conflicts, are included in peace agreements. The different needs of boys and girls are given particular attention in such agreements.

Donor States endeavour to ensure long-term funding for the reintegration of children formerly associated with armed forces or armed groups.

e) Juvenile justice

States consider children who have been unlawfully recruited by armed forces or armed groups and are accused of committing domestic or international crimes associated with a conflict primarily as victims, not only as alleged perpetrators.

States consider granting children formerly associated with armed forces or armed groups amnesty from prosecutions brought solely on account of their membership in armed forces or armed groups.

Whenever appropriate and desirable, States resort to measures other than judicial proceedings for dealing with alleged child offenders formerly associated with armed forces or armed groups.

States foster gender-sensitive rehabilitation and reintegration of children formerly associated with armed forces or armed groups when sentencing them and consider alternatives to imprisonment, such as care, guidance and supervision orders, probation, foster care or education and vocational training programmes.

Objective 2.2: To enhance the protection of women in armed conflict

a) Ratification, implementation and enforcement of relevant international law

States take appropriate legislative, judicial and administrative measures to implement their obligations regarding the protection of women and girls under international humanitarian law.

States take all feasible measures to reduce the impact of armed conflict on women and girls, and to ensure that their specific protection and assistance needs are met.

States commit themselves to putting an end to impunity and to prosecute in accordance with their obligations under international law – serious violations of international humanitarian law involving sexual and other forms of violence against women and girls, and for this purpose, enhance their capacity to prevent, monitor and document acts of sexual violence and other serious violations of international humanitarian law, and to this end, to cooperate, in conformity with their international obligations, both at inter-State level and with international criminal tribunals and courts.

b) Prevention of sexual and other gender-based violence against women

States ensure that all feasible measures are employed to prevent all serious violations of international humanitarian law involving sexual and other forms of gender-based violence against women. Such measures include:

- pre-deployment and in-theatre gender training of armed forces on their responsibilities, as well as the rights and particular needs and protection of women and girls;
- military disciplinary measures and other measures, such as reporting requirements on incidents of sexual violence to avoid impunity;
- ensuring that female detainees and internees are supervised by women and separated from male detainees and internees, except where families are accommodated as family units;
- ensuring, whenever possible, that female personnel are present during the interrogation of female detainees; and
- ensuring, whenever possible, women's participation in decision-making in peace processes.

c) Displaced women

Recognizing the great number of women among displaced persons, including in their role as heads of households, States take appropriate measures to ensure their physical and mental integrity, as well as to respect their dignity. Particular attention should be paid to ensuring their meaningful participation in decision-making, to protective measures for internally displaced persons against gender-based violence, such as location and protection of shelter, identified support and reporting systems, as well as access to female and child health-care services and those who provide it.

Objective 2.3: To enhance the protection of persons with disabilities during armed conflicts States recognize that under international humanitarian law, persons with disabilities may fall within the category of the wounded and sick or civilians enjoying particular respect and protection, such as the infirm.

States take all possible measures to ensure access by persons with disabilities to the specific medical care and attention, physical rehabilitation, as well as socio-economic inclusion required by their condition, especially in remote rural areas.

States, in cooperation with components of the Movement, facilitate steps taken to search for, collect and evacuate persons with disabilities to ensure the appropriate medical care and attention, physical rehabilitation, as well as socio-economic inclusion, required by their condition, in accordance with international humanitarian law.

States and components of the Movement take the specific needs of persons with disabilities into account in the planning, delivery and monitoring of their humanitarian assistance efforts, including with regard to access to shelter, water, sanitation, food distribution, education, medical care, physical rehabilitation, transportation, communication, and socio-economic inclusion programmes. They consult, when feasible, at all relevant stages of planning and implementation of their humanitarian assistance activities with the persons themselves, their families or local organizations of persons with disabilities.

Donor States consider the specific needs of persons with disabilities with regard to accessibility of humanitarian assistance in their funding guidelines.

Objective 3: Enhanced protection of journalists and the role of the media with regard to international humanitarian law

States and components of the Movement recognize that the work of journalists, other media professionals and associated personnel (hereinafter: journalists) may make an important contribution to the public knowledge about and the recording of information on violations of international humanitarian law. Thereby, journalists may assist in preventing violations of international humanitarian law as well as in facilitating the fight against impunity for such violations. States and components of the Movement also recognize that journalists may affect the respect for international humanitarian law in other ways, such as the obligation to protect detainees against public curiosity.

States reaffirm that journalists engaged in dangerous professional missions in areas of armed conflict are civilians and shall not be the object of attacks, unless and for such time as they are directly participating in hostilities. This is without prejudice to the right of war correspondents accredited to the armed forces to the status of prisoners of war provided for in Article 4.A.4 of the Third Geneva Convention.

States also reaffirm that media equipment and installations shall be considered as civilian objects and in this respect shall not be the object of attack, unless they make an effective contribution to military action by their nature, location, purpose or use, such as by the transmission of military intelligence or military orders, and their total or partial destruction, capture or neutralization, in the circumstances ruling at the time, offers a definite military advantage.

States integrate in the international humanitarian law training of members of their armed forces specific components on the protection of journalists in armed conflicts.

States and components of the Movement continue their efforts to disseminate relevant international humanitarian law on the rights and responsibilities of journalists, as well as to provide security training to journalists to prepare them for eventualities arising in armed conflicts.

States take adequate measures in their domestic legal orders, including criminal and mutual legal assistance legislation, to prevent and sanction serious violations of international humanitarian law against civilians, including against journalists, and ensure that such violations do not go unpunished.

Objective 4: To improve the incorporation and repression of serious violations of international humanitarian law

a) National incorporation

States – where applicable, with the assistance of national international humanitarian law commissions or similar bodies – identify the extent of all their international obligations related to the repression of serious violations of international humanitarian law and ensure their incorporation in the domestic legal order.

In light of the right of families to know the fate of their relatives as referred to in Article 32 of the 1977 Additional Protocol I, as applicable, States consider enacting appropriate legislation or arrangements to ensure adequate participation and representation of victims and their families as well as access to justice and protection of victims and witnesses, especially of women and children, in proceedings before their courts and in other transitional justice mechanisms concerning serious violations of international humanitarian law.

States recognize the importance of redressing gross violations of international humanitarian law. States also consider providing appropriate means to assist victims of violations of international humanitarian law together with appropriate resources for the implementation of these mechanisms, recalling in this regard the work of the ICRC discussing the framework of reparations, taking into account the primary role of States in the development of international humanitarian law.

States recognize the importance of complementary approaches to criminal sanctions and put in place mechanisms for the effective application of disciplinary, financial or other sanctions on violations of international humanitarian law.

b) Roles of Movement and States

National Societies, within their mandate and in their role as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field, assist States in the incorporation of serious international humanitarian law violations into the domestic legal orders, in particular where they work in the framework of national international humanitarian law commissions or similar bodies. The ICRC continues to provide technical assistance for the incorporation of such crimes.

States, in cooperation with the ICRC and National Societies, pay special attention to the dissemination of international humanitarian law to legal professionals, including prosecutors and judges. States commit to fulfil their existing obligations under international humanitarian law, including the Geneva Conventions, and to ensure respect thereof in accordance with Article 1 common to the four Geneva Conventions.

The ICRC will continue its efforts to make the content of international humanitarian law accessible to parties to armed conflicts and to provide appropriate training to them so that the consequences of non-compliance are adequately internalized by their members.

States cooperate with one another and with international criminal tribunals, in accordance with their obligations under applicable international law, to ensure:

- adequate knowledge of international humanitarian law by legal professionals, including lawyers, prosecutors and judges;
- gathering and sharing of evidence;
- provision of information to victims and their communities on their rights and the protection of victims and witnesses;
- respect for rights of fair trial of the accused;
- provision of an appropriate remedy to victims;
- enforcement of sentences.

Objective 5: Arms transfers

States and components of the Movement note the importance attached by previous International Conferences to ensuring that the use of all weapons in armed conflict complies with the principles and rules of international humanitarian law.

The ICRC and National Societies promote public awareness of the human cost of poorly regulated transfers of arms and ammunition.

The ICRC and National Societies, aware that work is under way in the UN context to address this issue, encourage effective arms transfer controls that include criteria so that arms do not end up in the hands of those who may be expected to use them to violate international humanitarian law.

Recalling their obligation to respect and ensure respect for international humanitarian law, States strengthen controls on the transfer of weapons so that they do not end up in the hands of those who may be expected to use them to violate international humanitarian law, and, in this context recall Resolution 3 of the 30th International Conference of 2007 and Final Goal 2.3. of the Agenda for Humanitarian Action, adopted by the 28th International Conference of 2003.

Reaffirming Final Goal 2.3 of the Agenda for Humanitarian Action, adopted by the 28th International Conference of 2003, States should make respect for international humanitarian law one of the important criteria on which arms transfer decisions are assessed. States are encouraged to make efforts to incorporate such criteria into national laws or policies and into regional and global norms on arms transfers.

Resolution 3

Migration: Ensuring access, dignity, respect for diversity and social inclusion

The 31st International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent (International Conference),

acknowledging the importance of respect for the human dignity and protection of all migrants, and expressing its deep concern about the continued suffering of those migrants that may live outside conventional health, social and legal systems and for a variety of reasons may not have access to processes which guarantee respect for their fundamental rights, recognizing the many benefits of migration and acknowledging the contributions of migrants to countries of origin, transit and destination as well as the challenges that international migration may present, recalling the Declaration “Together for humanity” (Declaration) adopted by the 30th International Conference, which reaffirmed “the importance of examining ways and means to reinforce international cooperation at all levels to address the humanitarian concerns generated by international migration.”, recalling further that the Declaration acknowledged “the role of governments, within the framework of national laws and international law, especially international human rights law, refugee law and international humanitarian law, to address the humanitarian needs of persons negatively affected by migration, including families and communities, and to take effective measures.”, reaffirming as set out in the Declaration “the role of National Societies, based on the principles of humanity and impartiality, and in consultation with public authorities, in providing humanitarian assistance to vulnerable migrants, irrespective of their legal status.”, expressing concern about the often alarming humanitarian situation of migrants in situations of vulnerability, at all stages of their journey and ongoing risks that migrants, in situations of vulnerability, face in regards to their dignity, safety, access to international protection as well as access to health care, shelter, food, clothing and education, recalling previous commitments made by States and the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement) to engage in the promotion of non-violence, respect for diversity and social inclusion of all migrants, recalling the responsibility of National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (National Societies) to act at all times in accordance with the Fundamental Principles and the Statutes of the Movement, welcoming the background report highlighting the progress achieved in carrying out the commitments undertaken at the 30th International Conference and the Policy on Migration adopted by the 17th Session of the General Assembly of the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (International Federation) and endorsed by the Council of Delegates in 2009, recognizing that acting in accordance with the Statutes of the Movement, in particular Article 3.1, National Societies should enjoy effective access to all migrants, irrespective of their legal status, in order to deliver humanitarian assistance and protection services without being penalized, both in their role as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field at all levels and under their general humanitarian mandate,

1. requests States, in consultation with National Societies, to ensure that relevant laws and procedures are in place to enable National Societies, in conformity with the Statutes of the Movement and, in particular, the Fundamental Principles, to enjoy effective and safe access to all migrants without discrimination and irrespective of their legal status;
2. calls upon States, within the framework of applicable international law, to ensure that their national procedures at international borders, especially those that might result in denial of access to international protection, deportation or interdiction of persons, include adequate safeguards to protect the dignity and ensure the safety of all migrants. States are also called on, in line with such relevant international law and national legislation, to grant to migrants appropriate international protection and to ensure their access to relevant services, such as Restoring Family Links. States and National Societies are invited to consult in the implementation of the aforementioned safeguards, as appropriate;

3. strongly encourages enhanced cooperation between public authorities, at all levels, and National Societies to pursue practical actions in formal and non-formal settings:
 - a. to promote respect for diversity, non-violence and social inclusion of all migrants;
 - b. to enhance cultural awareness between migrant and local communities;
 - c. to promote through formal and non-formal education, humanitarian values and the development of interpersonal skills to live peacefully together; and
 - d. to enhance social cohesion through the engagement of local and migrant populations and civil society organizations in voluntary service, community and sport programmes;

4. encourages States and the components of the Movement, in conformity with the Fundamental Principles and Statutes of the Movement, to continue to collaborate and build partnerships which recognize the role of the Movement in working with migrants and which could include relevant partners from international organizations (such as the International Organization for Migration (IOM), the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC)), non-governmental organizations and the private sector;
5. requests the International Federation to submit to the 32nd International Conference in 2015 a report on the measures taken in implementing the provisions of this resolution.

Resolution 4

Furthering the auxiliary role: Partnership for stronger National Societies and volunteering development

by the Fundamental Principles of the Movement, in particular the principle of independence;

In terms of

(I) Furthering the auxiliary role and strengthening National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (National Societies):

recalling Resolution 2 of the 30th International Conference (Geneva, 26-30 November 2007) whereby States and National Societies, the latter as auxiliaries to their public authorities in the humanitarian field, enjoy a specific and distinctive partnership at all levels, entailing mutual responsibilities and benefits, and based on international and national laws, in which the State and the National Society agree on the areas in which the latter supplements or substitutes for public humanitarian services, recalling that National Societies, in the fulfilment of their auxiliary role, may provide valuable support to their respective public authorities, including in the implementation of their obligations under international law (in particular, international humanitarian law) and by cooperation in related tasks, such as health and social services, disaster management and restoring family links,

1. calls upon National Societies and their respective public authorities at all levels to pursue and enhance balanced partnerships with clear and mutual responsibilities;
2. encourages National Societies to initiate or pursue a dialogue, as required, with their national authorities with a view to strengthening their legal base in domestic law, in accordance with the standards of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement), through sound Red Cross Red Crescent laws, so as to strengthen their auxiliary role in the humanitarian field and to formalize the commitment of national authorities to respect the duty and ability of National Societies to abide
3. requests States, National Societies, the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (International Federation) to enhance their work to strengthen the legal base of National Societies, specifically in regard to the statutes of National Societies in view of creating more effective, accountable and transparent National Societies that are able to adhere at all times to the Fundamental Principles, and welcomes the continued commitment of National Societies to achieve this goal;
4. calls upon States to create the conditions for more favourable and effective access for National Societies to people in need, which is a primary challenge in organizing a sustainable response;
5. encourages relevant government departments and other donors to provide a predictable and regular flow of resources adapted to the operational needs of their National Societies;
6. stresses in this regard the importance of States' long-term support and resourcing to contribute to the good functioning and development of National Societies as their auxiliaries in the humanitarian field as appropriate to ensure relevance of National Society activities within their national context, ability to undertake core functions, such as emergency response, as well as National Society stability, adaptability, accountability through sustainable organizational development;
7. invites the International Federation and the ICRC, in consultation with States and National Societies, to make available and further develop relevant information material for National Societies, the public authorities and other interested bodies, including guidance on partnerships with public administration, legal advice and best practices on Red Cross Red Crescent law with examples of tax exemptions and specific provisions on resource distribution.

(II) Volunteering development

recognizing that volunteers have been at the core of the Movement since it was first conceived of in 1859 and that today, as ever, they are central to all the activities of the Movement, contributing to the success of National Societies, and assisting millions of vulnerable people in times of greatest need, acknowledging thereby that volunteer development is a key prerequisite to strengthening National Societies, an essential element of their operational efficiency and of the role they play as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field, recalling the Fundamental Principle of voluntary service, and the centrality of volunteering and the spirit of voluntary service within the Movement, recognizing the outstanding contribution of 13.1 million Red Cross and Red Crescent volunteers to meeting the needs of vulnerable people, and the opportunity for public authorities at all levels to take positive actions to understand and improve the environment within which volunteers operate in order for National Societies to be able to increase the scale and the scope of volunteer service delivery, recalling the Youth Declaration adopted by the Red Cross and Red Crescent volunteers at the commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the battle of Solferino in 2009, reiterating their commitment to promote the cause of humanity worldwide, recognizing the wider benefits of volunteering within society, and that public authorities have a responsibility to deepen understanding of the value of, and take practical measures to encourage volunteering, understanding that one such practical measure includes developing applicable legal and policy contexts in which volunteering occurs, recalling that the 27th International Conference in 1999 recognized the importance of volunteers for National Societies, and Resolution 1, Annex 2 (Plan of Action), Final Goal 3.3 para. 13(b) placed the responsibility on States to “review and where necessary, introduce or update legislation so as to facilitate the efficient work of relevant voluntary organizations,” recalling the pledge by the International Federation at the 27th International Conference to, inter alia, “cooperate with governments to broaden the existing legal, fiscal and political bases for volunteering, and to mobilize increased public support,” recalling the guidance document issued in 2004 by the International Federation, the Inter-Parliamentary Union and the United Nations Volunteers, Volunteerism and Legislation: A Guidance Note and its valuable contribution, noting with appreciation the work done by the United Nations Volunteers in undertaking a study in 2009, Laws and Policies Affecting Volunteerism Since 2001, culminating in the United Nations Volunteers 2010 guidance note on “Drafting and Implementing Volunteerism Laws and Policies”, noting also with appreciation the International Federation’s complementary study on the specific legal issues arising in regard to the particular context of volunteers working in emergency and disaster situations, understanding that in order to ensure a protective and enabling legal environment for volunteering to function, in all settings including emergencies and disaster situations, the following aspects of national volunteering law and policy are critical:

- i. appropriate legal recognition of volunteers/volunteering activities,
- ii. clarity with regard to employment and volunteering,
- iii. laws facilitating volunteering from all sectors of society, regardless of employment status, gender, age, and any other forms of discrimination,
- iv. appropriate protection for volunteers including clarity in responsibilities and liabilities and assurances for the health and safety of volunteers, noting the Declaration of the 1st Global Volunteer Conference jointly organized by the United Nations Volunteers and the International Federation as part of the tenth anniversary of the International Year of Volunteers recognizing the role of volunteers in contributing toward the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and sustainable development,

1. in this regard calls upon States and National Societies to create and maintain an enabling environment for volunteering. In particular, respective public authorities at all levels are encouraged to:
 - a. in light of the work done by the United Nations Volunteers and the International Federation, undertake a review of relevant national law and policies and work to strengthen such frameworks as appropriate;
 - b. ensure safe access for Red Cross and Red Crescent volunteers to all vulnerable groups in their respective countries;
 - c. integrate volunteer capacity into domestic emergency response plans at all levels;
 - d. promote volunteering through measures encouraging citizens' engagement in such activities;
 - e. deepen their understanding of the role and impact that Red Cross and Red Crescent volunteers have in national social and economic development, as well as in responding to crises;
 - f. facilitate the voluntary work of their National Society and support its efforts to mobilize recruit, train and retain volunteers;
2. encourages National Societies to include adequate provisions defining the status, as well as the rights and duties, of volunteers in their statutory and constitutional base instruments.

Resolution 5

Health care in danger: Respecting and protecting health care

The 31st International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent (International Conference),

noting that the purpose of this resolution is to raise awareness and promote preparedness to address the grave and serious humanitarian consequences arising from violence against the wounded and sick, health-care services, personnel, facilities and medical transports, stressing that this resolution does not give rise to new obligations under international law, also stressing that this resolution does not expand or modify the mandates, roles and responsibilities of the components of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement (Movement) as prescribed in the Statutes of the Movement, recognizing the importance of the auxiliary role of National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (National Societies) to their public authorities in the humanitarian field, reaffirming the roles and responsibilities of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and National Societies in responding to the needs of the wounded and sick in situations of armed conflict, recalling that in accordance with Article 5 of the Statutes of the Movement, the ICRC operates mainly in armed conflicts and often together with National Societies, and bearing in mind that it may take any humanitarian initiative in situations of violence as prescribed in the Statutes on a case-by-case basis and acts only with the full knowledge and consent of the State concerned, in accordance with its roles and responsibilities prescribed in such Statutes, deeply concerned that the wounded and sick might be prevented from receiving the care and protection that they require by attacks and other impediments to the delivery of health care, and by threats and attacks endangering health-care personnel and facilities, and medical vehicles, and services to the wounded and sick, noting that providing adequate health care for the wounded and sick and the civilian population and securing access for medical services lies at the heart of the mission of the Movement, and is one of its main priorities, and recognizing the unique, privileged and complementary role of the components of the Movement in providing preventive, curative and rehabilitative health care and humanitarian relief to persons in need, recalling that the respect and protection of the wounded and sick, and of authorized medical personnel, facilities and transports, are enhanced through the use of the distinctive emblems recognized by the Geneva Conventions and, where applicable, their Additional Protocols, recalling Resolution 3 of the 30th International Conference, on the “Reaffirmation and implementation of international humanitarian law: Preserving human life and dignity in armed conflict,” in particular “the obligation to respect and to protect medical personnel, including Red Cross and Red Crescent workers, their means of transport, as well as medical establishments and other medical facilities at all times, in accordance with international humanitarian law,” expressing its appreciation for the work and efforts of all the components of the Movement that have engaged in addressing this important humanitarian concern in their operations throughout the world, and welcoming the global communication campaign, which aims to raise international awareness of the violence, both real and threatened, against health-care workers and facilities and the wounded and sick and to promote measures to mitigate them, taking note of the research done by the ICRC for preparing Health Care in Danger: A Sixteen-Country Study, July 2011, bearing in mind that international humanitarian law applies only to situations of armed conflict, and recognizing that international humanitarian law and applicable international human rights law provide a framework for protecting health care, recalling the basic obligation to provide all possible health care to the wounded and sick without discrimination, stressing in this regard, the prohibitions against attacking the wounded and sick and health-care personnel and facilities, as well as medical vehicles, against arbitrarily denying or limiting access for the wounded and sick to health-care services, and against molesting, threatening or punishing health-care personnel for carrying out activities compatible with medical ethics, recognizing the importance of health-care personnel having sufficient practical knowledge of their rights and obligations, and the imperative need for them to have unimpeded access to any place where their services are required in accordance with international law, emphasizing that domestic implementation measures, including training and education, are prerequisites for ensuring that States and their armed forces and security forces comply with their obligations under relevant international legal regimes to respect medical services and provide safe access for health-care personnel to the wounded and sick, stressing that States should ensure an effective system for establishing criminal responsibility for crimes committed against health-care personnel and facilities, and medical vehicles, and against the wounded and sick, in their domestic courts or under competent international jurisdictions where applicable; and that they should also ensure means for the effective suppression of such crimes,

1. recalls the obligations to respect and protect the wounded and sick, as well as health-care personnel and facilities, and medical vehicles, and to take all reasonable measures to ensure safe and prompt access for the wounded and sick to health care, in times of armed conflict or other emergencies, in accordance with the applicable legal framework;
2. urges all States that have not yet done so to intensify their efforts to adopt the required domestic implementation measures based on relevant international legal obligations pertaining to the protection of the wounded and sick and health-care services, including, inter alia, through the adoption of legislative, regulatory or practical measures;
3. calls upon States to fully respect and implement their obligations under the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law concerning the protection and use of the distinctive emblems, and further calls upon States to adopt, where appropriate, the legal measures, including enforcement measures, pertinent to the use and the protection of the distinctive emblems recognized by the Geneva Conventions and their Additional Protocols;
4. calls upon States to ensure, when circumstances require, adequate marking of medical facilities and vehicles with the distinctive emblems and signs, and their use of distinctive signals for the purposes of identification and protection;
5. calls upon States to ensure that their armed forces and security forces implement all applicable international legal obligations in relation to armed conflict, including situations of occupation, with regard to protection for the wounded and sick, as well as for health-care services, including through the development and adoption of appropriate doctrine, procedures, guidelines and training;
6. calls upon States to ensure effective investigation and prosecution of crimes committed against health-care personnel – including Movement personnel – their facilities and their means of transportation, especially attacks carried out against them, and to cooperate to this end, in conformity with their international obligations, at the inter-State level and with international criminal tribunals and courts, and calls upon States to prevent the deliberate and arbitrary obstruction of the delivery of health care;
7. calls upon the ICRC, National Societies and the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (International Federation) to enhance understanding, on the national and the international level, of the major humanitarian problem of violence against patients and health-care workers and facilities, and work with States and others to identify and promote potential solutions;
8. calls upon National Societies, the ICRC and the International Federation to continue supporting and strengthening the capacity of local health-care facilities and personnel around the world and to continue providing training and

- instruction for health-care staff and volunteers by developing appropriate tools on the rights and obligations of health-care personnel and on protection for and the safety of health-care delivery;
9. calls upon National Societies with the support of the ICRC and the International Federation, to train their staff and volunteers in the provision of effective medical assistance and in matters pertaining to their own security;
 10. calls upon the ICRC, National Societies, and where appropriate, the International Federation, to coordinate and cooperate with other humanitarian actors to ensure that the wounded and sick are provided with adequate health care;
 11. calls upon National Societies to engage with their respective States, in accordance with their status and role as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field, to explore ways to address the violence, both real and threatened, against health-care workers and facilities, and beneficiaries, in their own country;
 12. invites National Societies to increase their efforts to disseminate information on the obligations under international humanitarian law and human rights law to respect and protect health care, and to promote and support the domestic implementation of these obligations;
 13. encourages National Societies to intensify their commitment and efforts to adopt concrete measures for, inter alia, creating safer access for their health-care services and personnel to people affected in situations covered in the present resolution;
 14. calls upon the ICRC to initiate consultations with experts from States, the International Federation, National Societies and other actors in the health-care sector, with a view to formulating practical recommendations for making the delivery of health care safer in situations covered in the present resolution, and to report to the 32nd International Conference in 2015 on the progress made.

Resolution 6

Health inequities with a focus on women and children

The 31st International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent (International Conference),

agreeing with the World Health Organization that “the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of health is one of the fundamental rights of every human being” and noting that according to the World Health Organization: “[w]here systematic differences in health are judged to be avoidable by reasonable action they are, quite simply, unfair. It is this that we label health inequity. Putting right these inequities – the huge and remediable differences in health between and within countries – is a matter of social justice. Reducing health inequities is, for the Commission on Social Determinants of Health (hereafter, the Commission), an ethical imperative. Social injustice is killing people on a grand scale.”

recognizing that to reach Millennium Development Goal 3, Millennium Development Goal 4 and Millennium Development Goal 5, social and gender inequalities need to be addressed, being fully aware that health inequities are not limited to women and children, noting for the purposes of this resolution that whenever speaking about children, adolescents, and young adults it should be understood that actions proposed should be undertaken with due regard to age and maturity, being concerned that health inequities in many circumstances may be the result of human rights violations, and other economic and social factors, recognizing that no single actor can tackle health inequities alone, recognizing that addressing health inequities includes addressing social determinants of health, acknowledging that reducing health inequities requires the strong leadership, political will, and financial commitment of governments as well as strong international cooperation, recognizing that dismantling barriers to health equity can strengthen community resilience, recalling the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women as important legal frameworks to strengthen protection against health inequities for women and children, recalling Resolution 2 of the 30th International Conference recognizing the special partnership between public authorities and National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (National Societies) as auxiliaries in the humanitarian field, a partnership that entails mutual responsibilities and benefits. In agreement with public authorities, National Societies deliver humanitarian services, many of which contribute to removing barriers to care and increasing the equitable delivery of prevention, treatment, care and support,

1. calls on States and National Societies, in accordance with the special status of National Societies as auxiliaries to the public authorities in the humanitarian field, to work together to commit to reducing health inequities, beginning with removing obstacles to reproductive, maternal, newborn and child health through a needs-based approach informed by human rights, with a particular emphasis on the rights of the child;
2. encourages international organizations, such as the United Nations, the World Health Organization and the World Bank, and relevant regional organizations to increase their efforts in reducing health inequities, including through implementation of the 2011 Rio Political Declaration on Social Determinants of Health;
3. invites partnership at community, national, regional and global levels with States, civil society, donors and the private sector to reduce health inequities most quickly and effectively;
4. strongly encourages States and calls upon National Societies to work together and commit to action in the following three key areas, articulated to guide a needs-based and strategic approach to health inequities: 1) provision of healthcare services, 2) promotion of knowledge and 3) commitment to gender equality and non-discrimination.

who have the least access to health care without compromising the quality of prevention, treatment, care and support for other segments of society;

I. Provision of health-care services: Provide prevention, treatment, care and support when and where they are needed to women and children

National Societies are called upon to:

- 1) scale up efforts to bridge gaps between communities and health facilities, and between pre-pregnancy and child care, and improve access to prevention, treatment, care and support to those women and children, as well as adolescents and young adults, who would otherwise have limited or no access;
- 2) establish links with States and civil society organizations to survey, evaluate and measure the state of health inequities and the impact of policies and programmes to reduce health inequities, using existing frameworks and tools;
- 3) use their status as auxiliaries to their public authorities at all levels to engage in dialogue, review existing health plans and where necessary advocate for equity;
- 4) monitor and evaluate progress towards equitable health, including access to and quality of reproductive, maternal, newborn and child health, as well as that of adolescents and young adults;

States are strongly encouraged to:

- 5) remove legal and regulatory barriers in the formal health sector and other government services where barriers exist;
- 6) allocate available health resources according to need;
- 7) aim at ensuring available and safe, accessible and affordable and adapted to the local context, quality health care for all women and children;
- 8) aim at improving prevention, treatment, care and support for women and children

- 9) encourage the formal health sector to ensure non-discrimination and improve the quality and character of patient-provider interactions by increasing ethical practices and professional health-care standards: possible examples include posting patients' rights in health centres, adopting ethical charters, forming independent ethics commissions and training health-care workers on ethical practices and gender sensitivity;
- 10) address the critical shortage of 'human resources for health' and to support national strategies for 'human resources for health' retention, education and deployment;
- 11) further research into health inequities in countries where, in addition to the burden of reproductive events, women also face a disproportionate burden of chronic diseases.

II. Promotion of knowledge: Provide reliable and accurate information on health and encourage health-seeking behaviours, for women and children, as well as for adolescents and young adults

National Societies are called upon to:

- 1) scale up and measure efforts in providing reliable, accurate information on reproductive, maternal, newborn and child health;
- 2) scale up and measure efforts to encourage appropriate health-seeking behaviours and break down local barriers to safe motherhood and healthy childhood;
- 3) engage in advocacy on health-seeking behaviour and strengthen partnerships with States and civil society organizations to extend advocacy effectiveness;

States are strongly encouraged to:

- 4) recognize that quality, reliable, and up-to-date health education is essential to reducing health inequities and to enabling women and, when appropriate, children, adolescents and young adults, to make informed, autonomous decisions on health;
- 5) take the lead in providing education on healthy behaviour and practices that account for the specific local context;
- 6) ensure that education campaigns target the information needs of the population as a whole and pay special attention to the needs of those in vulnerable situations;
- 7) stimulate multi-sectoral action to support healthy choices;
- 8) create policies that encourage appropriate health-seeking behaviours and enable health promotion strategies;
- 9) involve civil society organizations in implementing campaigns to disseminate health information.

III. Commitment to gender equality and non-discrimination:
Promote gender equality, non-discrimination and end violence against women and children

National Societies are called upon to:

- 1) scale up efforts for social inclusion by non-discrimination programming and by ending violence against women and children;
- 2) set the example of gender equality in their own policies and programmes and to serve as role models for governments, civil society organizations and the private sector;

- 4) encourage women for greater decision making and ownership and enable men to take on their responsibilities linked to sexual activity and fatherhood;

States are strongly encouraged to:

- 6) engage in gender mainstreaming in programmes and policies;
- 7) empower women and girls, and engage men and boys in empowering women and girls, in the planning process and delivery of outreach on gender equality, non-discrimination, and ending violence against women and children, and engage men and boys in challenging damaging gender stereotypes;

Resolution 7

Strengthening normative frameworks and addressing regulatory barriers concerning disaster mitigation, response and recovery

concerned about the growing impact of natural disasters on the lives, livelihoods and well-being of people around the world, and in particular the poorest and most vulnerable communities, recalling Resolution 4 of the 30th International Conference in 2007, which adopted the Guidelines for the domestic facilitation and regulation of international disaster relief and initial recovery assistance (also known as the “IDRL Guidelines”) and encouraged States to make use of them, recalling Resolutions 65/264 and 65/133 of 2010, 64/251 and 64/76 of 2009, and 63/141, 63/139 and 63/137 of 2008 of the United Nations General Assembly and Resolutions 2010/1 of 2010, 2009/3 of 2009, and 2008/36 of 2008 of the UN Economic and Social Council, which equally encouraged States to strengthen their regulatory frameworks for international disaster assistance, taking the IDRL Guidelines into account, recalling Final Goal 3.1 of the Agenda for Humanitarian Action adopted by the 28th International Conference in 2003, which called on States to “review their existing legislation and policies to fully integrate disaster risk reduction strategies into all relevant legal, policy and planning instruments in order to address the social, economic, political and environmental dimensions that influence vulnerability to disasters.”, recalling the Hyogo Framework for Action of 2005, which called on States, inter alia, to make disaster risk reduction a national and local priority with a strong institutional basis for implementation, including through developing policy, legislative and institutional frameworks, allocating dedicated resources and promoting community participation, noting that, at the 15th General Assembly of the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (International Federation) in 2005, National Red Cross and Red Crescent

Societies (National Societies) determined to scale up the capacity of the International Federation and its members to provide emergency shelter in their response to the humanitarian needs following natural disasters and endorsed the International Federation’s offer to the Emergency Relief Coordinator to take a leadership role in the global “cluster” system in this respect, welcoming the International Federation’s background documents on progress in the implementation of the IDRL Guidelines, on law and disaster risk reduction at the community level, and on addressing regulatory barriers to the rapid and equitable provision of emergency and transitional shelter after disasters, welcoming the important progress made thus far in implementing the IDRL Guidelines at the national level in some States and in mainstreaming their use at the regional and global levels, noting with concern the International Federation’s finding that many States’ legal and institutional frameworks nevertheless remain under-prepared to manage common regulatory problems in international disaster response operations, noting with concern the shared findings of the International Federation, the United Nations International Strategy for Disaster Reduction’s (UNISDR) Mid-Term Review of the Hyogo Framework for Action, and the Global Network of Civil Society Organizations for Disaster Reduction’s surveys of 2009 and 2011 that progress in implementing effective disaster risk reduction action is often faltering at the community level and that many communities feel inadequately engaged and supported on the issue, noting with concern the International Federation’s finding that regulatory barriers are among the biggest obstacles the Red Cross and Red Crescent and its humanitarian partners face in providing emergency and transitional shelter in a rapid and equitable manner after disasters, may be an important cause of the prolonged suffering of affected persons, reaffirming that States have the primary duty to take effective action to protect their citizens from the effects of natural disasters, to provide them with any necessary humanitarian assistance in their aftermath as well as to promote their recovery, and that National Societies are committed to supporting them as their auxiliaries in the humanitarian field, reaffirming the sovereign right of affected States to seek, accept, coordinate, regulate and monitor disaster relief and recovery assistance provided by assisting actors in their territory,

Strengthening legal preparedness for international disaster response

1. reiterates the urgency for States to be prepared to facilitate and regulate any international disaster assistance they may require, in order to ensure that the affected persons receive timely and effective relief;
2. calls on those States that have not already made use of the IDRL Guidelines to examine and, where appropriate, strengthen their national legal, policy and/or institutional frameworks to consider doing so, with support from their National Societies, the International Federation, the United Nations and other relevant partners;
3. encourages States and National Societies to continue to promote the IDRL Guidelines to relevant public authorities at all levels;

6. invites further consultation with States and other stakeholders on the use of the model act as a reference tool;

Enhancing disaster risk reduction at the community level through legislation

7. reiterates that legislation is one of a number of key tools available to States to ensure that disaster risks are effectively addressed;
8. affirms that domestic legislation is one of a number of instruments able to promote community-level activity to reduce risks as well as the empowerment of communities with respect to risk reduction;
9. encourages States, with support from their National Societies, the International Federation and other relevant partners, such as the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), to review their existing legislative frameworks at all levels to assess whether they adequately:
 - a. establish disaster risk reduction as a priority for community-level action;
 - b. promote disaster risk mapping at the community level;
 - c. promote communities’ access to information about disaster risk reduction;
 - d. promote the involvement of community representatives, National Societies, other civil society actors and the private sector in disaster risk reduction activities at the community level;
 - e. allocate adequate funding for disaster risk reduction activities at the community level;
 - f. ensure that development planning adequately takes into account local variability in hazard profiles, exposure, vulnerability and cost-benefit analysis;
 - g. ensure full implementation of building codes, land-use regulations and other legal incentives, taking into account areas of competence of various levels of government within countries to reduce disaster risk at the community level in a manner that does not impinge unnecessarily on livelihoods or rights; and
 - h. promote strong accountability for results in reducing disaster risks at the community level;
10. invites National Societies and States to cooperate in widely disseminating information about existing legislation relevant to disaster risk reduction at the community level;

Addressing regulatory barriers to the rapid and equitable provision of emergency and transitional shelter after disasters

11. affirms the importance of finding practical solutions (both formal and informal) for quickly addressing regulatory barriers related to the provision of emergency and transitional shelter after disasters;
12. calls on States, the components of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement and relevant humanitarian organizations to make every effort to assure equitable shelter assistance as between all persons in need, including as between those who possess formal legal title to land or real property and those who do not, as well as between women and men;
13. encourages States, with support from their National Societies, the International Federation and other relevant partners, such as the United Nations and the World Bank, to review their existing regulatory frameworks and procedures relevant to post-disaster shelter to determine if they adequately:
 - a. provide for rapid measures to assign and/or temporarily requisition land for emergency and transitional shelter, if needed;
 - b. address how to provide shelter assistance to persons who lack documented title to their damaged or destroyed homes;
 - c. reduce the potential for any ambiguities or disputes with regard to land or property ownership to delay or hamper the provision of emergency and transitional shelter;
 - d. allow for tailored building standards relevant to the emergency and/or transitional shelter context; and
 - e. include measures to mitigate the heightened risk of corruption associated with the provision of assistance in the wake of a natural disaster;
15. requests the International Federation to continue to support National Societies and States in the field of disaster laws, including with respect to the areas of concern mentioned in this resolution, through technical assistance, capacity building, the development of tools, models and guidelines, advocacy and ongoing research;
16. invites the International Federation and National Societies to continue to strengthen their partnerships with relevant stakeholders in the area of disaster laws, including OCHA, UNISDR, UNDP and the World Bank, as well as other international, regional and non-governmental organizations and academic experts;

Ensuring dissemination and review

17. invites States, the International Federation, and National Societies to disseminate this resolution to appropriate stakeholders, including by bringing it to the attention of relevant international and regional organizations;
18. affirms the role of the International Conference as a key international forum for continued dialogue on the strengthening of disaster laws and on recovery action in synergy with actions conducted by States and international organizations;
19. requests the International Federation, in consultation with National Societies, to submit a progress report on the implementation of this resolution to the 32nd International Conference.

Extending support and partnerships

14. encourages National Societies, as auxiliaries to their public authorities in the humanitarian field, to continue to provide advice and support to their governments in the development of effective legal and policy frameworks relevant to disaster management at all levels, in particular with respect to the areas of concern mentioned in this resolution;

The Fundamental Principles of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement

Humanity

The International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, born of a desire to bring assistance without discrimination to the wounded on the battlefield, endeavours, in its international and national capacity, to prevent and alleviate human suffering wherever it may be found. Its purpose is to protect life and health and to ensure respect for the human being. It promotes mutual understanding, friendship, cooperation and lasting peace amongst all peoples.

Impartiality

It makes no discrimination as to nationality, race, religious beliefs, class or political opinions. It endeavours to relieve the suffering of individuals, being guided solely by their needs, and to give priority to the most urgent cases of distress.

Neutrality

In order to continue to enjoy the confidence of all, the Movement may not take sides in hostilities or engage at any time in controversies of a political, racial, religious or ideological nature.

Independence

The Movement is independent. The National Societies, while auxiliaries in the humanitarian services of their governments and subject to the laws of their respective countries, must always maintain their autonomy so that they may be able at all times to act in accordance with the principles of the Movement.

Voluntary service

It is a voluntary relief movement not prompted in any manner by desire for gain.

Unity

There can be only one Red Cross or one Red Crescent Society in any one country. It must be open to all. It must carry on its humanitarian work throughout its territory.

Universality

The International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, in which all Societies have equal status and share equal responsibilities and duties in helping each other, is worldwide.

Components of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement

ICRC

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) is an impartial, neutral and independent organization whose exclusively humanitarian mission is to protect the lives and dignity of victims of war and internal violence and to provide them with assistance. It directs and coordinates the international relief activities conducted by the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement in situations of conflict. It also endeavours to prevent suffering by promoting and strengthening humanitarian law and universal humanitarian principles. Established in 1863, the ICRC is at the origin of the Movement.

National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies embody the work and principles of the Movement in 187 countries. National Societies act as auxiliaries to the public authorities of their own countries in the humanitarian field and provide a range of services including disaster relief, health and social programmes. During wartime, National Societies assist the affected civilian population and support the army medical services where appropriate.

The International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies works on the basis of the Principles of the Movement to inspire, facilitate and promote all humanitarian activities carried out by its member National Societies to improve the situation of the most vulnerable people. Founded in 1919, the International Federation directs and coordinates the Movement's international assistance to victims of natural and technological disasters, to refugees and in health emergencies. It acts as the official representative of its member Societies in the international field. It promotes cooperation between National Societies and works to strengthen their capacity to carry out effective disaster-preparedness, health and social programmes.

Universal statutory bodies of the Movement

The International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent is the supreme deliberative body for the Movement and is one of the most important humanitarian forums in the world. It brings together the components of the Movement and the 194 States party to the Geneva Conventions to examine and decide upon humanitarian matters of common interest and any other related matter. It meets about every four years.

The Council of Delegates of the Movement constitutes the assembly of the representatives of the ICRC, the International Federation and the National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies. It meets every two years to discuss and take decisions on all matters which concern the Movement as a whole, such as joint strategies, policies and positions in the humanitarian field.

The International Conference and the Council foster unity within the Movement and help it carry out its mission in full accordance with its Fundamental Principles.
